Our Mission: To stimulate and facilitate a diverse economy through business retention, expansion, and recruitment

Energy CAPITAL

Economic Development

Energy Capital Economic Development continues to work for the economic betterment of Campbell County. Here are some activities that we would like to share with you.

ECED Quarterly Update

November 2026

From the Office of the CEO

The third quarter of 2026 brought continued progress in industrial recruitment, business development, and community partnerships. ECED worked with companies evaluating Campbell County for new facilities while supporting local business expansion and opportunities to put existing mine infrastructure to work for future development.

Nucleon Fuel LTD's proposed uranium conversion facility remained a major focus. ECED supported site visits, property acquisition discussions at the Ft. Union

Industrial Park, initial environmental review, workforce development discussions with Gillette College, and preparation of a Wyoming Energy Authority funding proposal.

On October 28, Nucleon Fuel LTD hosted a well-attended community open house. Community members spoke individually with company representatives about the siting, process, and safety of the proposed facility, and public feedback was very positive. ECED will continue working with Nucleon Fuel LTD on its next community engagement.

Project Mammoth continued evaluating sites with access to coal resources and opportunities for heavy industrial development. ECED worked with a potential coal mine site partner and coordinated preparations for an October visit.

Campbell County also remained under consideration for Project Transformer. Communication with the site selector continued, and the company engaged legal assistance to investigate siting, zoning, and permitting requirements.

Business Recruitment & Industry Projects

Mine infrastructure co-use continued to generate interest throughout the quarter. Frontieras announced a memorandum of understanding with Western Fuels to develop a mine-mouth facility at Dry Fork Mine, marking another step toward value-added uses for Powder River Basin coal.

ECED hosted representatives from JLL to tour Campbell County's Spaeth Ranch property, meet with stakeholders, and learn about additional regional development opportunities. Staff also coordinated site visits for Project Ivory, which evaluated three locations in northeast Wyoming, including two in Campbell County.

Support for existing businesses remained an important part of ECED's work. Staff connected local data destruction company Xscindo with potential partners, clients, and investors as it pursued expansion. ECED also helped facilitate discussions between the Stencil Apartments development team and the City of Gillette regarding zoning and setback options for Phase 2.

Additional activity included coordination with BWXT on facility siting and timelines, participation in a public meeting on its TRISO fuel facility and Kairos partnership, and discussions surrounding potential supply chain opportunities in composite materials manufacturing.

Wyoming Innovation Center

ECED hosted Earthics representatives as they evaluated locations for a synthetic graphite pilot plant. Work progressed on a potential agreement to locate a demonstration facility at WyIC, along with introductions and meetings with the University of Wyoming School of Energy Resources to explore shared efficiencies and partnership opportunities. ECED also provided support for the company's funding and investment efforts.

FUEL Program & Entrepreneurial Development

ECED continued working with Gillette College to strengthen the Energy Capital Start-Up Challenge. The next competition will take place in April 2027, allowing more time for promotion, encouraging student participation, and reducing conflicts with other events.

Preparatory workshops remain a key part of the program's focus on long-term business success. The first workshop, covering market research and customer discovery, was completed in September, with additional workshops planned to help potential entrants develop their businesses and prepare for the competition.

The Enterprise Center welcomed Urban Bookkeeping as its newest tenant. Staff also provided tours to prospective tenants representing a variety of professional and personal services.

Community Outreach & Partnerships

ECED launched its monthly member webinar in August, providing another opportunity to share project updates and maintain communication with members.

Work with West Edge and the City of Gillette advanced community marketing efforts. West Edge visited Gillette to record interviews with local leaders and capture footage highlighting the community for materials to be reviewed by the ECED Board.

Staff participated in economic development conferences, site selector training, energy discussions, and regional working groups throughout the quarter. These activities supported stronger relationships with utilities, state agencies, investors, and economic development partners.

ECED also completed final application responses for an EDA grant and continued implementing its customer relationship management system to improve project tracking and outreach.
