

Electronic Plan Review .msi, still have to install active x issue

You know how you install the .msi for EPR but it still prompts you to install the active-x? Seems there's a setting in IE now that is causing that. And, of course, it's disabled by default. So if you have users who have problems clicking that tan bar to install the Brava! Viewer you might want to have them change this setting and install the .msi.

